“The intuitive mind is a sacred gift and the rational mind is its faithful servant. We have created a society that honors the servant and has forgotten the gift.”

— Albert Einstein

Hello everyone,

Big news flash - we relocated recently from Hawaii and have taken residence in majestic Northern New Mexico. The noxious presence of “Vog” (volcanic smog) motivated an unexpected move. One tropical morning, Kathryn and I leaned against our Lanai’s railing; eye’s peering toward island’s edge- our hopeful gaze seeking a glimpse of heavenly blue water. All we viewed was an alarming cloud of dense fog covering both sea and sky. Hmmm, what’s that? As we scratched our heads, we watched these volcanic gases hover on the horizon for seven, sometimes ten mornings in a row. Our lovely Hawaiian atmosphere was volatilizing and was swallowed silently by a “white out” sulfuric haze only volcanoes dare create.

When the island trade winds cease, Kilauea spreads her choking blanket of volcanic vapor over Oahu. At first, we just shook our heads at the reeling irony of moving to Hawaii sixteen months prior pursuing pristine air quality. So began our trouble in paradise- after sixty plus consecutive days of burning throats, watering eyes and growing tightness in the chest, we took mother natures hint and high tailed it to the high desert.

As one might imagine, the Hawaii tourist bureau seems in no great hurry to inform mainlanders of the emergence of a large vent spout appearing in Kilauea volcano on Hawaii’s big island. This ominous occurrence happened in April of 2008 and has resulted in fifty percent more sulfur dioxide being spewed into the north Pacific atmosphere -an estimated 200 tons a day. When those trade winds cease blowing, the Vog travels from the “big island” northward to Maui’s shores before settling over Oahu. This Vog mixes with sunlight and moisture in the atmosphere before descending as (Natures own) acid rain. Sadly, Vog is actively wreaking havoc on the islands multi billion dollar agricultural crops. The long term human dangers of Vog exposure are still being researched, with evidence suggesting that strong Vog days coincide with alarming spikes in respiratory related emergency room visits. On hazy days children and “sensitive groups” are politely encouraged by authorities to “limit activities” and remain indoors.

Did you know? More than one quarter of New Mexico is forested and more than one quarter of Oahu Hawaii is desert.

So here we are, continuing our quest for clean air (So far- so good) currently living between the cities of Santa Fe and Albuquerque. Our friends and many supporters have expressed their heartfelt joy and elation that our feet are back upon the “continent.” It must be said, we too feel “closer” to our family and friends. Embracing life’s big changes is easy when receiving such big support.

We are finding New Mexico’s high desert to be a world of wonder- a stunning paradise all its own - a sun soaked dynamic landscape anchored by colossal watermelon pink mountains. (The Sandia’s) The rugged Rio Grande can never substitute for the Pacific Ocean, but it does afford a pretty setting for sunset strolls along the Cottonwood studded river banks.

"Down the road" we intend to get back to Hawaii for extended work/fun trips. But for now, its time to regroup energetically and physically from an ambitious transpacific relocation and the last two mainland travels. (It was wonderful to guide so many souls over the two "public appearance" tours) Currently, Castex Consultations is revving up the psychic engines on the home front, opening new office doors on the outskirts of Albuquerque.

Miraculously, the telephone makes life changing psychic readings possible across the globe (hooray for my free long distance plan). If you happen to be at a great distance from New Mexico, consider yourself invited to a "phone date" with me. Make yourself comfortable in my new cozy office and listen closely for empowering insights regarding your current and future potentials.

And last but not least, I am happy to announce the coming introduction of PayPal services here on the official CCI site. Even if you have never used PayPal, this service is quite easy and cost-free to use, utilizes the most secure technology with advanced encryption protection and major credit cards are accepted without needing to become a member. Now, your personal reading can be booked on the spot. Utilizing the PayPal service will make secure booking a breeze, it virtually eliminates administrative hubbub. (Kathryn is happy)!

I wish you all magical & Joyous Holidays and eagerly anticipate guiding you in 2009 on your sacred Path of empowerment!

Please keep in touch...we love receiving feedback from those who have embraced their guidance. When I hear accounts of souls finding renewed clarity and life direction, it's like a warm breath of fresh air.

Grace always,
Charley
